

Challenges in the European Electricity Markets

Prof. Dr. Rüdiger Kiesel

Abstract

European Electricity Markets changed rapidly in recent years. Due to market coupling the markets became more interconnected and at the same time due to the rising share of renewable energy more decentralised. We will introduce a multi-market structural model for coupled electricity markets and discuss its main properties. Furthermore, we will study intra-day trading of electricity and identify the price-driving factors.